11th International Congress of Myriapodology 1999

In 1993, during the 9th Congress (Paris), S.P. HOPKIN offered to organise the 11th in Reading (U.K.) in 1999.

S.P. HOPKIN very much regret that he has to withdraw his offer due to problems associated with organising such a meeting in Reading. Unfortunately, Reading University has become a centre for visiting "Open University" students during the summer months and it is impossible to guarantee sufficient accomodation for an international meeting. Besides, the authorities will not allow to book a decent lecture theatre in advance.

As alternative local venues are not available at a reasonable cost, our English colleague hope that by letting us known this well in advance that someone else will be able to step in for 1999.

The CIM Secretariat hopes it will be possible to find easily future organisers for the 1999 Congress and that arrangements will be satisfactory.

Please, let us know any formal proposal by mail or during the next Congress in Copenhagen .

The permanent Secretariat.

RÉSUMÉ/ABSTRACT

This volume represents a fundamental contribution to our knowledge of myriapod and onychophoran biology. It is divided into eight sections, dealing with the following topics: Historical Myriapodology; Advances in Systematics and Biodiversity; Systematics, Evolution and Phylogenetic Relationships; Community Studies and Biogeography; Reproductive Developmental Trends; Physiology, Ecophysiology and Cell Biology; Population Biology, Soil Ecology and Behaviour; Communities in Ecosystems.

The text includes 79 contributions from 107 authors and should prove essential reading for all students and researchers of the biology, ecology and systematics of Diplopoda, Chilopoda, Symphyla, Paupoda and Onychophora.

Yasunori MIYOSI
(1909-1995)

Dr. Yasunori Miyosi, Professor Emeritus of St. Catherina Women's Junior College, Hojo, Ehime pref., Japan, passed away on 19 April 1995 at the age of 86.

Miyosi was born on 17 April 1909 in a small village called Yoshifuji-mura (now Hiromi-cho), which is located among mountains in the southern part of Ehime pref., Shikoku. After graduation from Ehime Shihan-Gakko (= Ehime Teacher's School; now Faculty of Education, Ehime University) in 1929, he taught first at a primary school and after 1933 he worked as a teacher of biology in some high schools in Ehime prefecture until 1966.

He started his career in biology as an ichthyologist in 1933 when he became a teacher in Yawatahama Women's High School, which is located in Yawatahama, the most famous fishery harbor in Shikoku, Japan. During the stay in Yawatahama, he published several papers on taxonomy and fauna of fishes, including a paper describing three new species of cartilaginous fish, one shark Eugaleus hyugaensis (now Hypogaleus hyugaensis) and two rays Dasyatis maculatus [now junior synonym of Taeniura melanospila (Bleeker)] and D. matsubarai. He changed his studies from fish to harvestmen after he was transferred to Matsuyama Women's High School (now Matsuyama-Minami High School), Matsuyama, in 1938, because there was no fishery harbor yielding taxonomically interesting fish. Between 1941 and 1944 he frequently visited Kaza-ana (about 950m in altitude) which is located on the northern slope of Mt. Saragamine (1280m high), south of Matsuyama city, to collect specimens and to make ecological observations on harvestmen. Among these were three species which were described by him: Sabacon pygmaeum, S. satokioi, and Peltonychia japonica (now Nippononychus japonicus). They were elements of families which had not been known up to then from Japanese Islands. However, he could not continue his study of harvestmen, since Japan was almost entirely cut off from the outside world as World War II progressed and scientific publications from western countries became unavailable.

In 1943, Miyosi changed his subject again to myriapodology. In April 1944 he moved to Tokyo to study the group under veteran myriapodologist, Dr. Yosioki Takakuwa of Tokyo Bunrika University (now Tsukuba University). Takakuwa was the person who succeeded to Dr. K. W. Verhoeff and became a pioneer of Myriapodology in Japan. However, Miyosi was forced, because of the deterioration of Tokyo due to the World War, to leave the city by the end of October 1944. Fortunately for him, Dr. Takakuwa also evacuated to the residence of Takakuwa's relatives living in Matsuyama with his literature on myriapodology. This enabled Miyosi, who had secured a job at Matsuyama Women's High School, to continue his study.

During the war (4 February 1945), Miyosi burned his right hand and lost all the fingers except for the little finger. This accident happened at the charcoal brazier when he visited a munition factory in Imabari city, northern Ehime prefecture, as an attendant of his high school students who were mobilized there. He never surrendered to this adversity and continued to study the taxonomy of Japanese myriapods, especially millipedes, which requires nimble fingered skill in dissecting genital organs. After the war, Dr. Takakuwa recognized Miyosi as his best successor and committed his literature to his care.

Miyosi's first paper on myriapods was a description of a new species of the genus Monographis (now Eudigraphis takakuwai) in 1947, which appeared in "Acta Arachnologica", a journal of arachnology and myriapodology published by the Arachnological Society of East Asia (now Arachnological Society of Japan). Since then he published about 60 papers on myriapods. The most important contribution by him was a series of 26 papers published under the title "Beitrage zur Kenntniss japanischer Myriopoden". These were published between 1951 and 1958 when he was a teacher at Matsuyama-Kita High School. In the series, he described about 50 new species in Japanese and German. Reporting paternal care in a platydesmid millipede, Brachycybe nodulosa (Verhoeff), in 1951 was also important, though it was written only in Japanese and hence it was missed by myriapodologists outside of Japan. On the basis of these contributions, he was urged by Yosioki Takakuwa, Haruo Takashima, and Prof. Tohru Uchida of Hokkaido University to prepare a thesis. The resulting thesis "Ueber Japanische Diplopoden" was published by the Arachnological Society of East Asia in November 1959 and he received his doctoral degree (Dr. of Science) from Hokkaido University in February 1960, at the age of 51. Dr. Takakuwa murmured Banzai in his sick bed, he was ill at that time and deceased on 9 March 1960 at the age of 88, at the news of Miyosi's successfully passing his doctoral examination. The thesis, unfortunately for all the myriapodologists outside of Japan, was written only in Japanese. None-the-less it has long been a vademecum for millipede researchers in Japan.

After he left Matsuyama-Kita High School in 1966, he got a post of professor at St. Catherina Women's Junior College, Hojo city (just north of Matsuyama) and taught biology until his retirement in 1984. After his move to the college, he entirely switched directions of his studies from myriapodology to the flora of Ehime prefecture and adjacent areas in Shikoku. Vascular plants had been his favorite organisms since his graduation from Teacher's School and he had published several short articles and essays on plants since 1941. Although this is a regrettable conversion for the myriapodology circle, no one should blame him when you consider the difficulty in studying tiny and fragile millipedes and centipedes with missing fingers and senile eyes.

His tremendous research efforts and remarkable career have been greatly admired by various researchers in the field of natural history in Japan and serve to influence other myriapodologists and arachnologists, including me. The myriapodological library which was passed from Dr. Takakuwa, and augmented by Miyosi, has been donated to Hokkaido University through the courtesy of himself and of his wife, Chieko Miyosi. It consists of about 1,200 publications, containing many now-rare reprints, and is provisionally under my care.

Acknowledgments: I thank Prof. Kunio Amaoka, Hokkaido University, who informed me of the present status of fish species described by Miyosi and Mr. James C. Cokendolpher for his assistance with the English text of this obituary.

Wanda Maria STOJALOWSKA
(1905-1995)

Professor Wanda Stojalowska was born in Zurawno in 1905. During school years she lived in Lvov where in 1923 she finished secondary school. She finished biological studies graduating from the Faculty of Mathematics and Natural Sciences of the Jan Kazimierz University in Lvov. There she worked in the Vaccine Institute, which produced typhus vaccine, under Prof. Rudolf Weigl during the second World War.

Since 1946 she lived in Lublin and she became assistant at the Department of Biology of the medical Faculty of Maria Curie-Sklodowska University in Lublin. Here, she cooperated with Prof. Hieronim Jawlowski (1887-1977), one of the last representatives of the old school in the field of nervous system in insects and myriapodology.

In 1963 she became a headmaster of department of Biology and Parasitology at Medical School in Lublin. In those years she actively conducted research in medical parasitology, especially in parasites of digestive tract in humans.

She conducted original and interesting research on the development of several Glomerids. She brought new ground in the study of the life-histories of millipedes in the field. Her ramifying faunistic, cenological and morphological investigations on the millipedes were summarized in 200 pages monograph : Krocionogi (Diplopoda) Polski published in 1961. Prof. Stojalowska's contributions to myriapodology have been the key to the recognition of Polish Millipedes species, XIV. vol. of catalogue of Polish fauna- Diplopoda published in 1974 and 46 myriapodological and parasitological publications. Prof. Stojalowska devoted a large part of her myriapodological works to the study of synanthropic and mountain species of millipedes and describe new taxa especially from Poland. She was the chairman of the Parasitological Commission of Polish Parasitological Society, the Secretary of Lublinian Scientific Society, vice-chairman of Polish Zoological Society, section of Lublin. Till the end of her long life she took part in the scientific meetings. Also when retired Wanda Stojalowska retained a vivid interest in the progress of myriapodology. Her scientific interests influenced the careers of Dr. Bielak-Olesky, Prof. R. Giering, Prof. Gromysz-Kalkowska, Dr. W. Jaskiewicz, Dr. W. Pietron, Dr. Z. Pirog and Dr. W. Soroczan.

She will always be remembered by hundreds of students of medical faculty and young scientific researchers who were deeply affected by her exceptional gift in teaching, her noble manners and strong, personality.

Professor W. Stojalowska died on 16 mai 1995 in Lublin.

We will remember her for ever as one of the kindest colleagues in our discipline

Grzegorz KANIA.

A la découverte des souterrains de Paris

CYLINDROIULUS VULNERARIUS diplopode sub-urbain

Bonjour, je m'appelle Cylindroiulus vulnerarius et je suis un mille-pattes ; plus précisément un diplopode julide.

Je vous convie aujourd'hui à un voyage insolite... A la découverte des univers souterrains de Paris... étrange patrimoine à la fois caverne, refuge, sanctuaire, monde de repos des disparus, vision d'ensembles futuristes ornés d'incroyables architectures, labyrinthes de boyaux obscurs et de salles mystérieuses, carrières témoignant encore du labeur des anciens, réseaux résonnant de la déraison des hommes, peuplés de rats, de peurs et de merveilles, de légendes innommables et d'histoires cocasses, ville des ténèbres sous la ville lumière.

Patrick SALETTA vous offre les clefs de cette cité silencieuse, de ce monde invisible que je parcours chaque jour, accordant ma mémoire à l'esprit du curieux qui s'y aventure avec respect. Laissez-vous emporter dans les splendides entrailles d'une des plus belles villes du monde : dans les carrières, les catacombes, les abris, les bunkers, les églises et cryptes enterrées, les caves, le métro, les tunnels, les eaux souterraines, les égouts, les trésors archéologiques... vous ne regretterez pas le détour.

Ce monde, c'est le mien, c'est là que je vis depuis des temps inracontables. Certains de mes cousins anglo-saxons habitent parcs, jardins, cimetières ou décharges, nous autres Cylindroiulus vulnerarius de France, préféreront les grandes cités, ainsi vivons-nous essentiellement à Paris et à Lyon. Nous aimerions bien rencontrer nos frères de Marseille, s'ils existent, mais aucun chercheur n'est encore venu à bout de leur découverte.

A Paris, je suis bien, en compagnie de mon compère Callipus foetidissimus, j'arpente tous ces milieux que décrit le livre de Patrick SALETTA, où nous croisons de temps à autres des bandes d'humains cataphiles qui ne nous remarquent même pas, fascinés qu'ils sont par leur progression sous-urbaine ou le réveil de leurs démons intérieurs. Callipus foetidissimus est un bon copain. Nous ne sommes pas du même clan, lui, c'est un diplopode callipodide, rien à voir sinon une vague ressemblance de forme (vous voulez en savoir plus? Lisez Millepattia). En outre, il transporte avec lui une odeur pas toujours soutenable mais enfin, le temps et la complicité font le reste. Nous regrettons bien que Patrick SALETTA ne parle pas de nous dans son livre, nous aurions pu, enfin, cabotiner un brin. Mais nous aimons rester discrets et tranquilles, alors, c'est nous qui parlons de lui.

Allez, cherchez-le si vous ne l'avez pas!
